(CBS)

Before signing his massive economic stimulus package this afternoon, President Obama made remarks in Denver, Colorado heralding the bill, the crafting of which has consumed much of his young presidency.

He also stressed that there could still be hard times ahead.

"The road to recovery will not be straight. We will make progress and there may be some slippage along the way," said the president. "...But I have every confidence that if we are willing to continue doing the difficult work that must be done - by each of us and by all of us - then we will leave this struggling economy behind us, and come out on the other side. more
